What was life like for LGBTQ+ UNI students in the 1960s? A secretive underground life was led by LGBTQ+ people when no protections or support services for LGBTQ+ students existed on campus. According to accounts of former students, UNI began to “purge” gay men from the school in the mid 1960s. One such man was Tim Sullivan, a student who was asked to leave UNI’s campus for being gay. Tim left Iowa and went on to lead a successful career in fashion, becoming the Director of Visual Merchandising for Brooks Brothers. Tim is returning to share his story as part of UNI’s history.

Interested in Tim’s life after UNI in fashion? Tim will also be speaking with students interested in creative fields on Wednesday, October 9th from 5-7 PM. Contact lgbt@uni.edu for RSVP and for the location.
